Facilitated by Grahame Morgan-Watson

Espial: The Enneagram Mystery, One Day Workshop

One Day 10:00 am to 4:30 pm
(can vary according to location and price)

espial: n. Archaic. 1. the act or fact of being seen or discovered. 2. the act of noticing. 3. the act of spying upon; secret observation

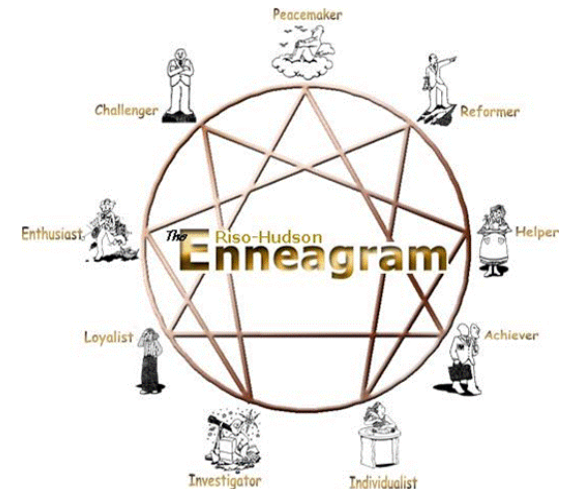

In this one day sampler workshop, you will experience working with the Enneagram. You will begin to see how the nine-personality types manifest themselves through attitudes, reactions and habitual behaviours. How each type can be seen within us, and how you can begin to discern your own dominant type.

The Mystery is our true nature not our personality type; the secret is to observe ourselves as we are with compassion and objective reason. The discovery is you.....

This is an ideal precursor to attending any one of the Enneagram Institute Authorised Workshops. As well as providing basic knowledge and token aspects from each workshop unique to the Riso-Hudson approach, practical ways for utilising these insights will be revealed during the day. Participants will see how each aspect fits in with a dynamic model for understanding ourselves and others.

Previous participants say:

"It was a very worthwhile day & I like the way you presented it. Josephine B. "Thank you for an inspiring day" Katherine E. "Very enlightening and valuable—liked the holistic approach to the information" Mary D "Right balance between theory and experience" Vicki M. "It was excellent as an overview" Sheila A.

"You must realize that each man has a definite repertoire of role which he plays in ordinary circumstances. He has a role for every kind of circumstances in which he ordinarily finds himself in life; but put him into even only slightly different circumstances and he is unable to find a suitable role and for a short time he becomes himself. The study of roles a man plays represents a very necessary part of self knowledge"
